

SOMEONE TO SHARE MY LIFE WITH
the Alternative Tribute to the
TELEVISION PERSONALITIES

We are very proud to present Someone To Share My Life With - the Alternative Tribute to the Television Personalities. A companion to last year's much appreciated If I Could Write Poetry (The Beautiful Music, Beauty 005).

After the release of If I Could Write Poetry we quickly realised that there were way too many excellent recordings left out, just laying around collecting dust on various CD-R's. Now we have selected eleven more tracks with blistering takes on some of pop music's finest songs.

This vinyl only release presents among others Swell Maps, BMX Bandits and Pacific Radio investigating classic TVP gems as 14th Floor, Girl at the Bus-Stop and This Time There's No Happy Ending respectively. Also we have Two Angry Men and their wonderful take on Part Time Punks, as well as alternative versions from Nikki Sudden, Lovejoy and The Higher Elevations.

We are delighted to have the honourable Alistair Fitchett writing the liner notes. He shares his feelings on being struck by the power of pop in general and Television Personalities in particular. A well-known and close at heart subject to all of us, wouldn't you say?

Someone To Share My Life With is certainly something to be thrilled by (alongside the much anticipated TVPs come back album, due for February release).

What else can one say, except that you can never get enough of Daniel Treacy's exquisite pop smithing.

Enjoy!

"Dan Treacy is right up there with literate wonders Robyn Hitchcock and The Go-Betweens, singing fabulously dreamy songs with thick British accent. So naturally, we are now blessed with the inevitable tribute record, filled with equally obscure yet wonderful bands paying proper homage."

John Sekerka, excerpt from If I Could Write Poetry review, Thrust Webzine autumn 2005.
